THE WYANDOTTE & NORTHWESTERN FINDS TERMINAL FACILITIES.

An Eighteen Years' Contract by Which the Future Great Road's Present Line Will Avail Itself of the Inter-State Elevated Tracks and the Bluff Tunnel.

The Kansas City, Wyandotte & Northwestern railroad has entered into an eighteen years' contract with the Inter State railway company to deliver its trains in Kansas City by way of the Elevated railroad and Eighth street tunnel.

It is the ultimate intention of the Kansas City Wyandotte & Northwestern to extend to Dakota, Wyoming and Montana, thus becoming a part of the great Kansas City system for the interchange of products between the northwest and southeast. When these plans are effected the road will hardly rank second in importance to any of the great commercial arms with which Kansas City now does business. In the more immediate future it is proposed to reach Beatrice, Neb., by an almost direct route. At the present time the road is complete from Wyandotte to Leavenworth, and it is this portion of the road which will soon avail itself of the Elevated railroad's terminal facilities. From Kansas City, Kas., the road runs the full length of Quindaro township, curves south through the northwest corner of Wyandotte township, turns north again through the northeast corner of Delaware, and runs thence through Prairie township into Leavenworth county, extending to Tonganoxie and the city of Leavenworth.

The only delay in putting the new arrangement into effect is in procuring rolling stock. The cars have already been contracted for and will be running, from Leavenworth to the Union depot terminus of the "L" road, ready to take immediate advantage of the bluff tunnel as soon as it is completed. Trains will run from early in the morning until late at night the last out-bound train not leaving until nearly midnight. The direct effect will be to immensely extend Kansas City's suburbs in Kansas and to make Leavenworth within a few minutes ride of Main street.

A MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

Paul Gifford Found Dead in Bed—Was it Suicide, Accident or Disease?

Paul Gifford, 29 years old, came to Kansas City about ten days ago and registered at the Coates House. He was from Hudson, N. Y., and was in search of employment. He bore letters of introduction to Messrs. Charles F. Emery and J. A. L. Waddell, who were acquainted with his family. Saturday night at 12 o'clock he registered at Whitaker's hotel and was assigned to room 36. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a chambermaid informed the clerk that the room had not been vacated during the day and that she had been unable to obtain any response from the inmate. The clerk failing likewise, broke down the door and saw Gifford lying in the bed, which had not been occupied, with a small pool of blood around his head as if there had been an excessive bleeding of the nose. In the room were found two bottles of chloral, one of which was untouched and from the other about forty or fifty grains had been taken. Both had been purchased Saturday afternoon, one at the Diamond and the other at the Junction Drug store. Coroner Elston was summoned, and after an investigation, expressed the opinion that death was not caused by the chloral but by convulsions. The remains were removed to Carlat's undertaking establishment where a post mortem examination is being held this afternoon.

The following touching letter was found in a pocket in his coat:

"MY DEAR SON:—It was with great gratification that your mother and I received and read your letter this morning, and we are ever so much obliged to you for writing so soon. We were very anxious to know of your safe arrival and your probability of success, and are pleased that you found some one to welcome you and greet you as a friend. It must be a satisfaction to you and to us that you are not without some one who cares for you in a strange and busy city. This is one reason why I felt reluctant for you to go to Portland, and why I hope so anxiously that you may succeed in finding in Kansas City some occupation. We shall be in suspense until we hear of your success in getting what you want. Kansas City is such an energetic, progressive, busy place that it seems there must be need of more assistance to conduct their business. I am a thousand times thankful that you remembered my last wish and saw Arthur. It was a happy disappointment when Arthur, who is here, told me that you had been together all the day. No man could speak more kindly of another than he did of you. Give my best wishes to Mr. Waddell. I wish I might see him and his wife. Most affectionately, YOUR FATHER."

Mr. Waddell, in whose care the letter was addressed, is an old friend of the family's and met young Gifford when he was only a boy 17 years ago. He telegraphed to his father yesterday morning. He thinks there is no reason for supposing Gifford took chloral with suicidal intent, as the young man was in no need of money, was honest, moral and upright. The presence of chloral is explained, by the fact that Gifford suffered severely from facial neuralgia and had long been accustomed to take chloral to alleviate the pain. He visited Mr. Waddell several times while in the city and always seemed to be in good spirits. His father is a member of the firm of Gifford Bros., the proprietors of long established and extensive iron works in Hudson, New York. The Arthur mentioned in the father's letter is a younger son.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. Gifford had his trunk moved from the Coates house to the home of Mr. M. M. Thockmorton, at No. 1401 East Eighth street. Mr. Thockmorton said this afternoon: "On Wednesday afternoon a gentleman called here and rented a room, paying $1.50 to have it held for him. That evening he had his trunk sent out. He was not very communicative. He said his name was Paul Gifford and requested that he be called in the morning at 11 o'clock. He came down the next morning without bing called, and he left immediately. He never returned."

In the room engaged by Gifford is a handsome leather trunk bound with canvas, a new black frock coat and a pair of trousers. A shaving mug bearing the name of Charles Gifford was in the dresser.

The post-mortem examination this afernoon revealed the fact that death was due to the enlargement of the right side of the heart and disease of the valves. Coroner Elston said that chloral was most dangerous in that disease, and undoubtedly precipitated death. About 50 or 60 grains were taken, sufficient in the diseased state of the heart to produce death. "I do not believe" he continued, "it was taken with suicidal intent, but merely to produce sleep."

Another Salvation Army Row.

Scott Roberts was sitting near the platform at the Salvation Army meeting, last night, when he drew a pencil and some paper from his pocket. He wrote a note which he handed to Mrs. Collier, who occupied a seat on the platform. The woman's husband, Leonard Collier, who is a one-legged sergeant of the Salvation Army, saw the movement, and, raising his cane, struck Roberts on the head, at the same time saying: "I'll answer that note myself." Considerable excitement reigned for some time but Officer J. B. Martin placed the two under arrest and they were taken to the central station in the patrol wagon. They will answer to charges of fighting before Recorder Davenport, next Wednesday morning.

WAR AT RANDOLPH.

The Bridge Workmen Mob a Saloon—John Cummings Supposed to Be Dying.

John A. Cummings, alias John Canfield, alias John McGrath, and also known as "Montana Ike," lay on a bed in the Sisters' hospital, at the corner of Seventh and Penn streets, this morning, dying. A pistol ball was lodged under his right shoulder blade and in his right side in the region of the abdomen was bedded a quantity of shot. At the same time Samuel Swigert was stretched on a wire mattress in the corridor of the west wing of the Second street jail in great suffering from a wound in his temple and another in his left side. Both received their injuries in a riot at the Randolph bridge, yesterday afternoon. Cummings was employed on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad bridge while Swigert has been conducting a saloon and boarding house in that locality. Saturday evening the laborers at the bridge were drinking hard and several fights occurred. About 12 o'clock Swigert cleared the house and refused to sell any more liquor. But the men prevailed upon him to open the doors by representing that a fight was to take place and they wanted him to hold the stakes. Then they rushed in and took possession of the barroom. Swigert interposed and was struck on the head with a water pitcher by Cummings. The blow laid open the scalp and the men a few minutes later left the house. Yesterday morning everything was quiet, but when the bridge hands found that Swigert kept his saloon closed they grew angry and about noon endeavored to break into the saloon. Their leader was Cummings and he crawled in through the window which was broken, Saturday night. A shot gun lay back of the bar and Cummings and Swigert struggled for it, Swigert finding that he would be compelled to yield drew a revolver and fired at Cummings, who fell to the floor. The gun fell and was accidentally discharged, the shot taking effect in Cummings's side. Deputy County Marshal William Gregg heard the shots and hurried towards the house, but before his arrival there the door had been broken down by the mob and he found it impossible to enter the house. He pulled his revolver and endeavored to force his way through the crowd, but without effect. His revolver was taken away from him by a heavy-set man, who entered the house. When Swigert shot Cummings he ran up a stairway leading from the bar-room to the second floor. The man who took the deputy marshal's revolver entered the house and followed Swigert up stairs deliberately shooting him in the forehead and side. He then made his escape and has not yet been captured.

Cummings was removed to his boarding house and Swigert crawled down stairs and barricaded the doors and windows. County Marshal McGowan, deputies Freeman, Keshler and Flemming with mounted Policeman Haase and Flahive soon arrived and had Swigert removed to the county jail and Cummings to the Sisters hospital.

A brother of Cummings named Robert, who refuses to admit that his name is Cummings, called at the hospital last night and was arrested by Marshal McGowan on suspicion of being the man who shot Swigert. He was released this morning, however, as it was proven that he was not the man.

Dr. H. B. Wood, the police surgeon, probed for the bullets in Swigert's body this morning and succeeded in extracting both after about an hour's search. The bullet which entered Swigert's left leg was extracted from the left side of his body, immediately under his arm, its course being just under the flesh, causing a very painful but not dangerous wound. The other bullet was removed from the forehead near where it had entered. Unless pyemia sets in Swigert will soon recover.

The committee is not certain whether they will illustrate some epoch in history or legend of mythology, but we propose to have the parade as imposing and impressive as our fund will permit. BIG SALES FOR MONDAY.

THE BRISBANE BUILDING SOLD TO AN IOWA MAN FOR $135,000.

Heavy Transactions in Mexican Acres—Four Hundred Acres South of Rosedale Purchased for $200,000—The Bank Clearings Reaching for Pittsburg.

The sale of the Brisbane building, or the "Delaware Block," at the corner of Seventh and Delaware streets for $135,000 is the most important one of the day. The property was purchased by Mr. F. H. Whitney, of Iowa, from Mr. W. S. Woods, of the Bank of Commerce. The building was purchased last winter by Mr. Woods for $100,000. Mr. Brisbane was in Europe at the time this sale was made and it was always considered very cheap at those figures. The building has been repaired and is now a fine piece of business property.

The ground occupied by the building has a frontage on Delaware street of 25 feet and extends back to Wall street. The building was erected about five years ago and pays an annual rental of about $16,000.

Mr. W. H. Whiteside, of this city, has been in St. Louis, for several days, and while there has in conjunction with his brother, Judge T. C. Whiteside, of Chicago, Colonel John D. Miles, of Lawrence, Kas., and Mr. Francis E. Hinckly, of Chicago, effected one of the largest real estate transactions ever recorded, being the transfer of 1,200,000 acres in the La Santissima grant in Mexico, on the Rio Grande.

This tract of land was originally sold to a Chicago syndicate, but the sale was not consummated, on account of the inaccuracy of the Glenn and Doyle survey, upon which the transfer of title was based. When a trial survey was made, it was discovered the metes and bounds given in the Glenn and Doyle survey would carry the grant far into Texas, and were entirely unreliable. The whole contract was abandoned by the Chicago syndicate on account of this inaccuracy in the title, but no sooner was it given up by them than Mr. Hinckley stepped to the front, had the land resurveyed, and agreed to purchase it from the St. Louis owners in spite of the fact that a larger price was asked of him than of the Chicago parties. It will be stocked and will be the largest cattle ranch in world.

A syndicate composed of Judge S. P. Twiss, O. H. Queal, C. C. Abell, Colonel D. B. Dyer and others have purchased 400 acres on the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf railrord, three miles south of Rosedale and intend to build a suburban town to be called South Park. They have already secured the location of the Crowe Spring Manufacturing company at this place. This company makes carriage springs and iron fence posts and employs 200 men. A depot will be built here, and a horse car line from the station is contemplated. The price paid for the land was $200,000 or $500 an acre. General R. S. Benson, the seller, purchased the land eight months ago from the heirs of Silverheels, Shawnee Indian, for $100 an acre. Forty-nine and a half feet on Grand avenue, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, were sold for $63,000.

TO-DAY'S TRANSACTIONS.

D. B. Dyer & Co. sold for R. S. Benson to the South Park Improvement & Investment Co., of Kansas, 400 acres three miles south of Rosedale, on the Fort Scott road, for $200,000; also the corner of Eighteenth and Jarboe streets for $7,000, and five acres near Argentine for $6,750.

Perrin, Turner & Co., sold 49½ feet on Grand avenue, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, for Milton Welsh to W. C. Chidden for $36,000.

George B. Wightman & Co. sold 2 lots in "Squire Place," to J. T. Elliott, for $8,500; 2 lots in Troost Park Annex, to Mr. Birch, of New York, for $3,500; 1 lot in Kenilworth, to —— Ellison, for $1,250.

George F. Winter & Co. sold lot 18, block 6, Winter park, for $650, and lot 30, block 15, in the same addition, for $600.

The following were the offers at the Kansas City real estate Exchange this morning: 120 acres south of Rosedale, $500; 50 feet on Jefferson street near Twenty-first street, at $75 a foot; 5 acres at the corner of Twenty-seventh and Elmwood street, $2,500; 90 feet on east Ninth street, $80 a foot: 137 feet, corner of Tenth street and Wheeling avenue, $45 a foot; 225 feet on Miller avenue, 75 feet on Prospect avenue near Eighteenth street, $75 a foot; 3 acres in Indianapolis Place, $15,000 an acre; Baltimore avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets, $150 a foot; four five room houses on Locust street, $2,500 each.

Graham & Denny sold through A. C. Bishop, the Brisbane building, at the corner of Seventh and Delaware streets, for $135,000, and 24 feet on Main street, between Missouri avenue and Sixth street, for $65,000.

George F. Winter & Co., sold 9 lots in F. C Moody's subdivision, on Euclid avenue, to James G. Stone, for $20,000.

Real Estate Transfers.

A correct report of the real estate transfers for the past week shows the amount to have reached $2,518,837. To-day forty-five deeds were filed amounting to $261,075. Among them were the following:

Seven miscellaneous permits were issued, amounting to $800.

Bank Clearings.

But a few weeks ago Kansas City ranked below New Orleans and Milwaukee [illegible] center, but her clearings are n[illegible] of dollars in excess of either's rep[illegible] is pressing hard upon Pittsburg, wh[illegible] the next city passed. Five weeks a[illegible] clearings were over $3,000,000 [illegible] those of Kansas City. Last wee[illegible] than $400,000 larger. If the pr[illegible] crease continues it will require [illegible] for Kansas City to rank above Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Baltim[illegible] and this will place her next to St. Louis.

The bank clearings for to-day were almost $1,800,000. If the remainder of the week shows up as well, the total will be over $10,000,000. The following are the clearings compared with those of the same day last year:

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

John Wills, the Slayer of Henry Smith, in Court—A Large Audience of Negroes.

The criminal court was crowded this morning, with colored people interested in the trial of John Wills, charged with murder in the first degree for the shooting of Henry Smith, colored, in his saloon [illegible] the corner of Twelfth and Charlotte str[illegible] on April 5. The prosecution w[illegible] sisted by Colonel Waters, whose services [illegible] secured by the colored citizens. The accused will be defended by Henry Withers and Colonel John W. Wofford. An extra panel of jurors were brought in as most of the original panel had expressed opinions about the case and had read accounts of it in the daily papers and thus were disqualified.

The Waggoner Case Postponed.

The case of the State against John Waggoner was called to-day. Major Wofford, the prosecuting attorney, asked the court to continue the case [illegible] the state was not quite ready for trial. Judge White set the case on the docket to be called w[illegible]never the State was ready Waggoner was put on his personal recognizance in the sum of $500. He was indicted for the shooting of William Springer on November 24, 1886, at "Curley" Shane's saloon, on Lydia avenue. The evidence against Waggoner is only circumstantial, and the coroner's jury advised letting Waggoner off, but the prosecuting attorney had him indicted, firmly believing him guilty. Waggoner and Springer were last seen together in the saloon about 12 o'clock. Waggoner claims that he and another man went away, leaving Springer alone in the saloon, long before the alleged shooting took place. The watchman about the place asserts that although present during the entire night of the shooting, he never heard the report of a revolver.

BLOODY SUNDAY BATTLE.

Fearful Row in East St. Louis in Which One Man is Mortally Wounded.

Special Telegram to The Star.

EAST ST. LOUIS, June 6.—A terrible shooting affray occurred about dusk last evening in Whisky Chute, which will probably prove fatal and which had the elements of a cool, deliberate murder. Henry Wolfmier, of 811 Destrehan street, St. Louis, a box maker, his two boys, John Churchill, his brother-in-law, of 811 Chambers street, St. Louis, and four or five other parties from St. Louis, came over early in the morning and had been spending the day fishing in Cahokia creek. Returning, they stopped at Ignatz Banderdistle's saloon on the corner of St. Clair avenue and the Plank road, and took several drinks. In the saloon they met some St. Louis men, who were drinking at the bar at the same time and who, it is said, were moulders.

A discussion arose in regard to the Stove Moulders' strike, and someone in the crowd called out: "Down with the scab!" The St. Louis men left the saloon and were on the sidewalk in front when Churchill claims that he was assaulted by someone in the crowd, unknown to him, and dealt a terrible blow over the right eye. A general scrimmage took place, in which, it is claimed, Banderdistle, the proprietor of the saloon, and his son, took a very prominent part. Pat Graham, a porter for F. Smith & Son, wholesale grocers, corner of Second street and Washington avenue, was also in the crowd. He had with him his little son about 10 years of age, and he had spent the day fishing and gunning. He carried with him a Stephens rifle, which was loaded. During the fight he received a severe blow under the left eve and a cut in the back of the neck. Wolfmeier was knocked down, badly beaten and kicked, but was finally rescued by his friends and started to run down the street. He had made about 100 yards in safety when shots were fired at him from a pistol and a rifle. The ball from one of the weapons struck him in the left shoulder blade, going clean through the bone and lodging in his left lung. He dropped down in the street and his friends picked him up. They took him to the side of the Chicago & Alton track and put him on the first train coming in and took him to the relay depot. From there he was taken to the East St. Louis police station, where Drs. Wilhelm, Deham and Illiasky probed for the bullet without success. The man vomited blood, which they thought came from his lungs. The doctors consider the wound fatal.

LYNCHED.

An Arkansas Negro Meets Death at the Hands of a Mob.

Special Telegram to The Star.

CLARENDON, Ark., June 6.—On Tuesday last a negro made an attempt to outrage Mrs. J. M. Parks, the aunt of Sheriff Robinson. He was prevented from carrying out his designs, not, however, until he had violently assaulted her and broken her collar bone. He was brought here and jailed, but threats of lynching were freely indulged in and extra precautions were taken to prevent summary punishment by the infuriated neighborhood. After a couple of days had passed without any demonstration having been made it was thought that the violently disposed had cooled down and that the law would take its course. The vigilance which had been kept up from the moment the negro was placed in jail, was relaxed and a feeling of security prevailed.

It was, however, as the calm before the storm, as Saturday night the pent up fury of the friends of the victim and their sympathizers broke out and an organized band of determined men marched into the city shortly after midnight. So quietly did they come that the citizens were not awakened from their slumbers and not until they arose this morning were they aware of what had happened. On reaching the city the mob marched directly to the jail where the negro was confined. There were about forty men in the band and without any preliminaries they forced an entrance into the jail and secured the object of their wrath. A rope was placed around his neck and while he piteously howled and begged for mercy he was dragged from his cell through the corridor into the open yard. A tree in the court house yard seemed to the crowd to be just what they wanted, over a limb of which the rope was thrown. The cowering wretch was asked if he was guilty and he acknowledged that he was but begged that his life might be spared. A scornful laugh was the only answer he received as the rope was drawn up. After remaining long enough to satisfy themselves that their victim would never participate in another crime the mob dispersed as quietly as it came.

WHO SHALL BE TREASURER?

An Interesting Issue in To-morrow's Board of Trade Election.

An interesting side issue will develop in the annual election of the directors of the Board of Trade to-morrow. Until the election of a year ago Mr. W. H. Miller was secretary and treasurer of the board. The finances of the concern had become of such importance that it was then decided to separate the offices. Mr. Miller was re-elected secretary and Mr. W. H. Winants, a member of the directory, was elected treasurer. Mr. Miller had made the deposits of the board with the Bank of Kansas City, of which Mr. W. J. Anderson is cashier. In the election Mr. Anderson, who was not a member of the directory, received some support for the office of treasurer, though Mr. Winants's majority was ample. Mr. Winants is cashier of Armour Bros'. bank, which is in the Board of Trade building and he at once transferred the board's accounts to that institution. The Bank of Kansas City is now making an energetic effort to secure the election of Mr. Anderson. For some time the procuring of proxies and the buying of stock has proceeded and so quietly has it been done that the Winant interest learned only a few days ago of the plan on foot.

There are thireeen directors, seven votes being necessary to the election of an officer. The success of the Anderson party will necessitate several changes in the board of directors, the present board, in all probability, having a majority sentiment in favor of re-electing Mr. Winants. The capital stock of the board is $350,000. The new board of trade building, which is progressing rapidly toward completion, will cost not far from $650,000. The land upon which it stands will then be worth nearly, if not quite, half a million of dollars, making the total property represented by the $350,000, worth over $1,100,000. It will be necessary to borrow $300,000, leaving the actual surplus about $500,000. So far as known no stock has been transferred at a premium though several small lots have been bought at par or a little below.

"The great danger," said a Board of Trade man this morning, "is that the Board, in interesting itself in this side issue of the treasurership, will lose sight of the really important point, which is, that the board of directors should be thoroughly in harmony with the building project and thoroughly conversant with the plans and progress of the work. It is possible that the work may be delayed and interfered with unless the board keeps prominently in view the fact that this, and not the election of a treasurer, is the great point to be considered."

Frightful Casualty.

CHICAGO, June 6.—A Grand Forks, Dak., special says: "During the absence of Bokken, a Norwegian farmer, at a neighbors house, Mrs. Bokken and two children, aged respectively three and four years, were left at home. The mother left the house. Returning, she found the room, in which she had left the children on fire. Quickly snatching the youngest child, she made a rush for the door, in doing which she upset a kerosene can, the oil igniting and setting fire to her clothes. She succeeded in getting out of doors, where she lay down with the child in her arms. Both were literally roasted to death; the other child was burned to death in the house."

An Old Land Mark Gone.

Special Telegram to The Star.

LOUISIANA, Mo., June 6.—The Diamond flouring mill, which for the past fifty-one years has stood on the river bank, was totally destroyed by fire at 1:30 this morning. The origin of the fire is attributed to spontaneous combustion or else a spark from a passing engine. The mill first began work under the management of John S. McCune and Benjamin Burbridge in 1836, and since then has had various owners, the last being Jordan, Estes & Zook. There was an insurance of about $14,500 on the property. Three box cars belonging to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway were also destroyed.

Emphatically Denied.

PITTSBURG, June 6.—The statement that the Penasylvania company proposed to divert their St. Louis traffic via the Ohio & Mississippi and Vincennes roads and that the Vandalia had leased three miles of the road from the Ohio & Mississippi company, were emphatically denied by General Manager McCrea of the Pennsylvania company, in an interview this afternoon. He also stated that the Ohio & Mississippi had no suit pending against the Vandalia.

A Murderer Hanged.

PEMBROKE, Ont., June 6.—David Gogolin, a German, who, in October last, killed Mrs. Wherenthal, his tenant, because she refused to vacate his house or pay rent, was hanged here this forenoon. A few minutes before the drop fell Gogolin sang a favorite German hymn, with clear and unwavering voice, apparently as cool as though an ordinary church service was taking place. He died without a struggle. He made no statement.

Returned to His Cell.

Robert Carpenter who, only a few days ago, was released from the county jail, having served a ninety days' sentence, was returned there to-day for two months by Justice Maybury for stealing a clock from a Mr. Kirk.

All Differences Adjusted.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 6.—All differences between the stove manufacturers and moulders have been amicably settled and work will be resumed in all the foundries in this section to morrow morning.

TEXAS TRAIN ROBBING.

ANOTHER BOLD AND SUCCESFUL FEAT IN THE SOUTH.

The Texas & Pacific Intercepted by Four Masked Men and the Mail and Express Cars Neatly and Expeditiously Robbed—The Mysterious Leader.

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 6.—Texas is called upon to chronicle another train robbery, and following, as it does, so closely upon the heels of the preceding one, throws this section of the country into a great deal of excitement.

At 7:45 Saturday night, as the east-bound train on the Texas & Pacific railroad was pulling slowly out of a small station called Bentrook, a short distance west of this city, four masked men leaped upon the engine and with drawn revolvers compelled the engineer, John Baker, to pull ahead to Brush creek, where they ordered him to stop upon a high trestle located about eight miles from here.

Here the robbers entered the express car, leaving two of their number guarding the engineer and fireman. The messenger, Tom Marsh, was ordered to hold up his hands and was told that what money he had was wanted quickly. One of the robbers went to the safe, and holding a sack with one hand transferred all the valuables he could find from the safe to the sack with the other.

The mail car was next visited, and Agent Skiles compelled to give up three packages of registered matter.

The robbers then ordered the engineer to pull out as fast as he could, and he lost no time in complying with the request. No effort was made to molest the passengers, but shots were fired at several who attempted to leave the train.

The exact amount received by the robbers is not known. The train was a through one from El Paso, and generally carried a large amount.

The figures given out here are $1,350, but knowing ones laugh at any figures less than $5,000, while some assert that the amount is over $10,000. The express officials are non committal. The three registered packages taken from the mail car contained, it is asserted, only a few hundred dollars.

The train was only delayed twenty minutes. The robbers had horses near at hand and were off like the wind before the train began to move.

When the train reached Fort Worth Sheriff Shipp was notified and went in pursuit with a posse of officers, and was shortly afterward followed by another posse.

The robbery was well planned and most successfully executed. It took place five miles from the Gordon robbery in January last on the same road. At that time the officials put the amount of booty at a low figure, but it afterward proved to be enormous.

The country has been thoroughly scoured by officers with bloodhounds but no trace of thieves can be found, the heavy rain of Sunday morning having destroyed the scent and the hounds being of little use.

THE TRAIL LOST.

Sheriff's Shipp's posse returned from the scene of the train robbery at 5 o'clock yesterday morning and Marshal Turner and his posse came in at 7:30 last night, both empty handed. As soon as the sheriff put the blood hounds on the trail at the trestle they took up the scent and started away up a dry branch leading north from the place of the robbery with nose to the ground. They followed it rapidly for three miles until a public road leading from Grandburg to Fort Worth was reached. Here both hounds followed the trail up and down the road, showing the robbers to have doubled their tracks. At this time some twelve or fifteen country dogs rushed at the hounds, barking and attacking them which served to disconcert them and they would not again take the scent.

The party returned to Benbrook and saw the station agent, who says he could easily recognize the two men who boarded the locomotive. The most surprising thing in the whole affair is the action of the man on the white horse who turned out not to have been one of the robbers but an officer of the law, Constable Murphy, of the Benbrook precinct. He says he was coming down the road and saw the train stopped and a number of men standing near the trestle. He supposed it a wreck and rode on near the trestle, when he saw the pistols in the robbers' hands and took in the situation. As soon as the robbers withdrew, he galloped on home. Fort Worth officers gnash their teeth at Murphy's lack of forethought. He must certainly have known that officers from the city would soon be out and if he did not wish to make a fight he could at least have left his horse and shadowed the robbers sufficiently to have informed the sheriff the direction taken.

There was a deputy sheriff of an eastern county on the train who wanted to make a fight at the time of the robbery but the ladies in the first passenger coach begged and pleaded with him not to while the men argued that it meant certain death to the engineer and firemen if he did so.

Marshal Farmer's posse obtained no clew at all and returned very much disappointed. Deputy United States Marshal Morton arrived yesterday and has taken the field with a posse, while two fresh posses from Fort Worth have gone out, and all constables and sheriffs in this part of the state have been notified and are on the alert. One feature of these frequent robberies is that the engineers begin to dislike the situation, their fear being that in one of these robberies the passengers will offer resistance, and they will lose their lives. The officers and detectives working on the case have come unanimously to a conclusion, and that one man planned all the recent train robberies in Texas, and has one or two men who have been with him in all the robberies.

THE ROBBER CHIEF.

The robber chief who has shown up at the Bellevue robbery on the Fort Worth & Denver, at the San Antonio robbery on the Texas & Pacific, and at the Brushy or Mary's creek robbery, Saturday night, is the tall man who does the stand and deliver part of the work. The description of this man at all three robberies is the same; tall, blue eyes and sandy hair and mustache, the only difference in description being at Bellevue where he wore a beard, at the others none; but the beard could easily be cut off. In the first two robberies he wore a white hat. Saturday night he wore a jockey's cap. The robberies have been planned nearly alike, the only thing lacking in the first being the stoppage on the trestle.

COMMENDED AND CONDEMNED.

Comment Caused by O'Brien's Failure to Attend Saturday Night's Meeting.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Editor O'Brien did not attend the monster mass meeting held here Saturday night, and as a consequence considerable comment followed. He has received numerous telegrams congratulating him on the course he took. He said in an interview yesterday regarding a resolution referring to Dr. McGlynn which was stated from the platform on Union square Saturday night, and attributed to him that no such resolution was ever submitted to him, and that he had never made any allusions either direct or indirect to Dr. McGlynn's case. His absence was due to the fact that he did not wish to compromise his cause with any political section in America, and he felt obliged to resist the attempt to identify his cause with the particular organization by which the labor parade was conducted. His visit was on Irish business purely and nothing else.

Last night at the Academy of Music before an audience of nearly 4,000 people representing the Anti-Poverty society, Dr. McGlynn was the principle speaker. In the course of his remarks he said: "I was not in the original resolution about coercion which Mr. O'Brien blue penciled, and what Mr. O'Brien ought to be ashamed of was the penciling of the resolution that the land belongs to the people. Mr. O'Brien is a landlord at heart himself. It is only a question of a small percentage between Mr. O'Brien and Lord Lansdowne. That resolution about coercion about Italy and other countries, got in partly, through O'Brien himself. When our friends discovered that they could do nothing with Mr. O'Brien they determined to go on and give him a dose of coercion about Italy. They said they were going to send their own greeting to Ireland and not what Mr. O'Brien thought. We thought the coercion clause would displease Mr. O'Brien and some of his ill advisers."

At the session of the Central Labor Union yesterday, John McMackin made an address denouncing Editor O'Brien for refusing to attend the mass meeting Saturday night. He declared that he would not lower the flag at the command of ecclesiastical power or corrupt politicians. If Catholics were to be controlled by a foreign power there would be good cause for the sneer that they were not citizens. Resolutions were adopted denouncing Editor O'Brien for his action.

At a meeting of the Fifth ward branch of the Irish National league yesterday Ex-Senator Grady made an address in which he strongly commended Editor O'Brien for refusing to attend the mass meeting Saturday night.

He said that Ireland's cause should not be mixed up with any oth r question. Religious prejudice formerly had separated the Irish people, but that had passed forever, and no other conflicting element should be allowed to come in.

Receiving Callers.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Editor O'Brien was at his room in the Hoffman house all the morning. He received many callers. Among these were Major Byrne, Thomas M. Eagan and J. J. Delaney, president of the municipal council of the Irish National League of New York. He had nothing new to add to his statement At 12 o'clock, Peter Welsh, conductor of the Fourth avenue railway, called in behalf of the District Assembly 75, Knights of Labor: "I come to say," were Mr. Walsh's words, "that of 700 men who marched Saturday night of our assembly, four-fifths are in sympathy with your action. I have spoken with most of them."

OFF LONDON BRIDGE.

Larry Donovan Jumps in Honor of the Jubilee Year.

LONDON, June 6.—When old St. Paul's and a dozen churches near the Thames on London bridge were ringing 1:30 yesterday, Donovan leaped from it into the river. He was accompanied to the parapet by J. Zaiger, his trainer, and about half a dozen members of East London athletic clubs. He was dressed in a black frock coat, waist and trousers and a round hat. Under his coat was a waistcoat of flannel and underwest.

"These are the identical things I wore when I made the leap from Brooklyn and Niagara Falls suspension bridges," said Donovan in a semi-proud tone. When he got to the center of the bridge he placed his hands on the parapet, which was about seventy feet from the water, and stood a few moments. He then jumped, holding his hands over his head, and dropped as straight as if on an imaginary line into the Thames, striking the water feet first.

He went under to the depth of sixteen feet. He said afterwards it was a short time before he reappeared and then he swam strongly for 200 yards toward the boat which brought him to Swan Pier where he was met by a crowd. He seemed none the worse for his exertion and two city policemen now appeared intent on arresting him, but Donavan showed them a medal which was pinned to his breast and said it was not a case of suicide and that there was no use of arresting him, that he was the champion diver and swimmer of America. Then the police released him and the crowd cheered. He walked away in his dripping wearing apparel attended by his friends.

He said: "I did it in honor of the jubilee year. I intend doing Clifton Bridge, Bristol, which is about 200 feet drop, but I do not wish the date published, or else I may be stopped. I feel as well as I did before I took the jump and would do the same to-morrow only I gain nothing by it. I consider it one of the easiest leaps I ever did. This jump is half the one from Brooklyn bridge and about a third less leap than from Niagara Suspension Bridge."

DISASTER AT A CIRCUS.

Terrible Calamity and Loss of Life in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 6.—During the performance of a circus Saturday evening in the town of Neschin a storm of wind unroofed the building, causing the walls to collapse upon the audience of 2,000 people. The oil from the lamps ignited and set fire to the ruins and a large number of persons were burned or tramped to death and 300 others were injured.

The Fleet Thistle.

LONDON, June 6.—A brisk breeze was blowing this morning, when the yachts started in the race at Dover around a course forty-four miles long. The Thistle led directly. She turned the pier within her own length and was a quarter of a mile ahead of the other yachts at the end of two miles.

When the Thistle had covered twenty-two miles or half the length of the course, she led the Genesta by five minutes and 42 seconds. The Irex was third, one minute behind the Genesta. A thick fog has considerably interfered with the racers, but it is now clearing away.

The Thistle was first to cross the finishing line beating the Genesta, which was second by 15 minutes. The Irex was third.

Enormous Hidden Fortune Found.

MADRID, June 6.—It is reported that a hidden treasure, to the value of £95,000,000, has been discovered in the palace of the deceased Vizir, at Rabat, Morocco. The Sultan, it is said, confiscated the treasure and is having it conveyed to the imperial coffers.

DISEASE RIDDEN.

Small Pox in Cuba Rapidly Spreading to All Ports.

The deaths in this city from the first to the 27th inst., numbered 40, not one of the victims having been vaccinated. The disease appeared at Guantanamo and doubtless will spread to all Cuban ports.

Cold Blooded Murder.

DRESDEN, Tenn., June 6.—W. K. Robinson, recently from Texas, shot and killed William Hillyard near Sharon, in this county, last night. Both parties were employes of the stave firm of Hitt & Stege. Robinson had a difficulty with John and George Brown, cousins of Hillyard, yesterday. Robinson and Hillyard boarded at the same place and occupied the same room. When they went to their room to retire Robinson was cursing the Browns, Hillyard told him it was no use to be abusing the Brown boys, as they were not present. Robinson cursed Hillyard and asked him if he took it up, at the same time he pulled his pistol and shot Hillyard just above the right eye. Hillyard lived twenty minutes. Robinson is here in jail.

How the Stolid Indian Meets Death.

CHICAGO, June 6.—A special from Little Rock, Ark., says: "Two Seminoles, convicted of having murdered a comrade, were executed near the Seminole agency, Indian Territory, recently. The Indians showed supreme indifference to their fate. When the death warrant was read, the murderers walked calmly to the blanket stretched on the ground where they took leave of a number of friends. They were blindfolded and then knelt down, presenting their breasts to the sheriff and his deputy, who advanced with revolvers and dropped on their knees directly in front of them. At the first discharge both the culprits fell on their faces dead."

The Old Gentleman Caught the Mania.

NEW YORK, June 6.—A Jonesboro, Ga., special says: A singular case of marriage has furnished amusement for the people of Fayette county in the last two years. There were five Hamby boys and the same number of Starnes girls. The Hamby boys began marrying Starnes's daughters in succession. He protested, but in vain, the last couple eloping to be married here Saturday. Mr. Starnes seeing himself thus outwitted went to the house of Mrs. Hamby, the mother, and almost by force put her in his buggy, and riding off to Fayetteville, married her.

A Negro Killed.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 6.—Frank Jackson, a merchant at Galloway, near this place, shot and mortally wounded a negro named Isah Jackson on Saturday night. A fight followed, the negro being shot twice. Frank Jackson surrendered himself this morning, and was discharged. He is a justice of the peace, and widely known.

Not the Result of Blood Prejudice.

In the Bodyke district yesterday Michael Davitt addressed a Nationalist meeting. He urged the people to offer the utmost resistance to eviction and to retake possession of their houses when they had been evicted. He declared that it was the duty of the manhood of the district to assemble and rebuild houses that had been razed. Davitt announced his intention of holding a meeting next Sunday of 30,000 or 40,000 men for the purpose of rebuilding every house demolished during the past or coming week. Care should be taken, he said, that pecuniary and generous assistance should be given during the incarceration of members of any family.

THE KANSAS CITY STAR's daily circulation for the week ending Saturday, June 4, 1887, was as follows:

Monday, May 30	25,250
Tuesday, May 31	25,000
Wednesday, June 1	24,900
Thursday, June 2	25,006
Friday, June 3	25,180
Saturday, June 4	24,770
Total for Week	150,106
Daily average for the week	25,017

THE average daily circulation of THE STAR last week exceeded 25,000. These figures speak for themselves, and must be as gratifying to all who are interested in Kansas City as they are satisfactory to THE STAR. This circulation is not only without parallel in this city, but would not be possible in any other city west of the Mississippi.

BUCKET-shops not legislated out of existence show a disposition to go out by failure. A dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., tells this story: "SID PHELAN's bucket-shop has failed. Loss, $300,000; assets nothing." No regrets are reported.

THE sun is doing its best to create a heated term, and it may be admitted that his efforts yesterday were quite successful. This is a warning to those in charge of the garbage ordinance that it should begin its work of cleaning as soon as possible. There is disease in delay.

TRAIN robbers have transferred their field of operations from Missouri to Texas. The Texans ought not to show these murderers and robbers the same leniency that at one time was allowed to them in Missouri. They are desperadoes who are entitled to no mercy and Texas should deal promptly and severely with them.

AT the threshold of a new week Kansas City "points with pride" to the business record of the preceding week. The bank clearings were $8,643,396; the real estate transfers were $2,518,352; and the building permits were many and some of them for good sized amounts. In every department the business of last week was largely in excess of that of the corresponding week of 1886.

ONE hundred million brick, all placed in position by masons, would make a great array of new buildings for one season in any place. That is the number of red blocks of burnt earth that will be used in buildings of various kinds in Kansas City during the present year. If there be any other cities in the union that want to count home bricks, made for home consumption, in 1887 with this city let them step to the front.

THE agricultural department of Missouri has collected data from all portions of the State which show that the crop prospect is far more than an average yield. The heavy rains throughout Kansas make it probable that the grain, grass and fruit crop of the State will be abundant. These facts betoken a year of prosperity for Kansas City and the country adjacent. Fortunate is the city situated in the centre of a land burdened with the marketable products of the soil.

THE report having got abroad that Wichita was holding to the tail end of its boom and (gradually passing under the boomerang,) the Board of Trade of that city felt called upon to publicly contradict the report. According to the statement of the Board the city is leaping forward at great speed and has her pockets full of money. The Board of Trade is on the spot and ought to know whereof its speaks. Wichita is a prosperous little city and only deserves that the truth be spoken of it.

IT is charged that BOULANGER aspires to be a second NAPOLEON. If his ambition pointed him to such a career, France is to be congratulated on his downfall. Since 1815 conditions have changed in the old world and another NAPOLEON would now be impossible in Europe. The republic of France is safer at peace than in war. No other power in Europe is interested in upholding a republic. If BOULANGER is not a thorough Republican his triumph might mean the downfall of the French Republic.

A ST. LOUIS paper prints and the Kansas City Times reprints an interview with MAXWELL, the sensational assassin, in which it is stated that he is reading "VIRGIL," and that he "uses a Latin translation when he gets stuck on the Greek." If MAXWELL reads "VIRGIL" in Greek he is a "good one." Perhaps it is not surprising that a St. Louis paper should print such slush as this, but the University club editors of the Times were evidently absent from the office when it was reprinted in that paper.

EX-VICE-PRESIDENT WILLIAM A. WHEELER died at his home in Malone, N. Y., last Saturday. The record of his life is an honorable one. He spent the greater number of his days in performing the duties of public political trusts, or as the manager of important business interests. He was faithful and capable in every trust com[illegible]ed to his care. He was not brilliant but he was plentifully gifted with common sense which, united to his perfect integrity, gave him the confidence of the people. When he was made vice-president by the electoral commission he entered upon his duties and performed them satisfactorily to the end of his term. Since that time little has been heard of him. Now death has closed the last scene of all over an honorable career, which was practically ended when he took his seat as vice-president of the United States.

MAY a man be excused and held blameless for living up to the privileges of a bad law? This is the question which HENRY GEORGE raises in the case of Lord LANSDOWNE and his tenants. He objects to the abuse which O'BRIEN is heaping upon Lord LANSDOWNE personally, and thinks his indignation should be directed against the English law which permits him to oppress and mistreat tenants. The cold logic may be with Mr. GEORGE, but the moral sense of the public insists that a man's conscience when properly enlightened should preserve him from a wrong course of action, so that one may be legally right and morally wrong. The conclusions of the informed conscience are to be respected; and the man who always insists on having his "pound of flesh" because it is "so nominated in the bond" is worthy of failure and exposure. Under this view of the case O'BRIEN has done good public service in exposing the disreputable and inhuman practices of Lord LANSDOWNE, one of England's public servants. In this practical and selfish world reforms are often made by holding up personal examples of the evils to be removed.

SLEEP.

We sleep and dream. Who has not seen and met
His heart's desire in that charmed palace—Sleep,
And hugged the happiness he could not keep,
Or kissed an ideal he could never set
In place of waking facts! Thus, from the fret
And toil of life, we enter, wandering deep
Through the long corridors, where dreams, that steep
Our souls with gladness, wile us to forget
That they are dreams. Here in the sleeping place,
We come into the presence, face to face,
Of longings realized; here stretch our hands
To touch some well-remembered form of yore,
And speak the words we should have spoke before
Our friends passed from us into distant land.

—Chamber's Journal.

READ THE ANSWER IN THE STAR.

JASPER—"Can a man refuse to take $25 in pennies in part payment of a bill?" Yes; cents are legal tenders for any amount not exceeding twenty-five cents.

READER—"Which is correct, 'between you and I' or 'between you and me.'" "Between you and me" is alone correct.

THEATER—"When did Mrs. Langtry make her first appearance in the United States?" On Monday evening, November 6, 1882, at Wallack's Theatre.

BUSINESS—"Are there any States or Territories of the United States that do not practice capital punishment for high crimes?" Almost any lawyer can inform our correspondent fully on the subject on which he here expresses interest. It may be remarked as going to show what is possible in the case, that in 1872 a law was passed in Iowa abolishing capital punishment.

Chamberlain in His Conservatory.

From the London Truth.

Mr. Chamberlain is now, I rejoice to know, at home, where he can receive all the attentions which his case requires. The unfortunate gentleman is much shaken in nerve and body. He spends most of his time in reading fiction, which, as involving no great strain on the intellectual faculties, is permitted by his medical attendant. His favorite romance is "Parnellism and Crime." He thinks the proprietor of the Times, whom he calls "Walker" (this confusion of names is a very common symptom in these cases) is the greatest of living men, and hopes soon to see him made a peer by the title of Lord Mendax. He spends most of his time in his conservatory trying to produce a cross between the primrose and the orchid. If he succeeds he proposes that he and Jessie Collins should wear the hybrid in their buttonholes. He sleeps well but always has the same dream—that he is Prime Minister.

Thackeray's Old Haunts in Paris.

From Scribner's Monthly.

I went to see my old haunts when I came to Paris thirteen years ago, and made believe I was a painetr—just after I was ruined and before I fell in love and took to marriage and writing. It was a very jolly time. I was as poor as Job and sketched my way most abominably, but pretty contented; and we used to meet in each other's rooms and talk about art and smoke pipes and drink bad brandy and water. That awful habit still remains, but where is art, that dear mistress whom I loved, though in a very indolent, capricious manner, but with a real sincerity? I see her very far off. I jilted her, I know it very well; but you see it was fate ordained that marriage should never take place; and forced me to take on with another lady, two other ladies, three other ladies; I mean the muse and my wife, etc., etc.

Visiting Cards in the Harem.

From the St. James Gazette.

When the Padisha sanctions innovations in the harem it is impossible to predict what may happen next in the world of Islam. For centuries the names of the ladies of the imperial harem and the particular apartments they occupied have been known only to the Sultan and the chief of the eunuchs. Latterly, however, this confidence has been shared by two of the physicians attached to the household. Now the Commander of the Faithful, of his own motion, it is said, has ordered that in future each sultana shall enjoy the luxury of a visiting card, and that she shall affix a copy of it to the outer door of the apartments she occupies in the harem.

Military Novels Out of Fashion.

From the London Daily News.

Mr. James Grant's tales were of a class all but obsolete. He was a military novelist. We have ceased to be, as we were till 1815, a military, and we have become a manufacturing people. Consequently novels about strikes are much more successful than novels about stricken fields. Moreover, even if we were military, war is no longer so fine a theme as it was of old. The game of kings has become the impact of armdd peoples. There is no marching and counter-marching and loafing in winter quarters.

THE NEW YORK FASHIONS

AS REPORTED BY THE FASHION EDITOR OF HARPER'S BAZAR.

White Dresses, Embroidered Muslin Dresses, White Lace Dresses, Wedding Dresses, Light Mourning Dresses, White Wool Dresses and Summer Millinery.

Dresses of soft white wool crepeline or of veiling, or else of mull or sheer nainsook, are prepared for young girl graduates to wear on Commencement day. These are made with a short skirt of the material hung on a foundation skirt after being pressed into fine pleats almost as fine as accordion-pleating. When made of wool, these have several rows of narrow white moire ribbon set above a deep hem, while muslin skirts have Valenciennes insertions set in. The drapery may be of the material in a short apron with double or single pointed back, or else it may be a sash breadth of moire, surah, or lace, passed around the front and hips, and hanging behind in loops and ends to the foot of the skirt. The waist is a shirred basque with full sleeves. A V plastron and deep cuffs are made of the ribbon and wool, or the muslin with lace. Another pretty corsage for these dresses has the plain material tucked or shirred at the top, with lengthwise rows of ribbon or lace put on from the tops of the darts (and same height behind) tapering in at the waist line, and reaching to the end of the bodice on the hips. This is in round cuirass shape, and the sash edges its outlines. The sleeves are made full for slight young figures, and may be either gathered at top and bottom, with a wide cuff covered with ribbon or lace, or they may be the French sleeves, plain at the top and gathered full to a wristband of lace or ribbon, or else they may be the leg-of-mutton sleeves, cut slender at the wrist and gradually widening to the top, where they are left full, or else laid in fine tucks between the puff at the armhole and the elbow. The simple belted waist is also worn, made high at the throat or lapped in surplice fashion across the bust to the left side. Oriental lace, Valenciennes, and some of the larger-figured art laces are the trimmings most used. The latter are put on plain and smooth in deep V's, and as collars, in yoke shapes with wide cuffs.

Embroidered dresses have a short skirt made of open-worked embroidery in squares or stripes and simply hemmed, or else the open designs are in small all-over patterns with a scalloped edge; and the fancy is to make a border near the foot, or panels down the sides, or stripes down the fronts and sides, by running the narrow ribbon through the open figures, six or eight rows in a cluster. The drapery is then plain muslin, or a fancy sash of Roman stripes, or of the wide metal-striped silks, or of moire or surah, and a basque is made of the embroidered goods with a vest and middle back trimmings of the ribbons. In other waists only the guimpe and sleeves are of the embroidery and ribbons, with a full waist of nainsook made with square, round, or half-low neck, with lace on the edge and in the armholes, gathered to fall softly. The striped embroidered muslins are used for entire dresses, being made up just as striped silks are. There are also pretty dresses with the waist and drapery made of embroidered flouncing over an accordion-pleated skirt of white nainsook, in which several rows of Valenciennes insertion are set around above a deep hem.

Bridemaids at June weddings will wear lace dresses made of the new white silk lace in designs like those of the black marquise laces and there are also dresses of plain Brussels net, of point d'esprit with its tiny dots, of striped lace, of the square-meshed Russian nets, and of the polka-dotted net with large ball-like spots. V-necked half-low waists gathered on the shoulders, and half-long sleeves gathered at the top, or else plain to the elbow, with a soft puff there are the corsages of such dresses. The skirts have two or three flounces gathered all around or lengthwise, or else festooned, and Marie Antoinette paniers short and full in the hips, with one or two long points in the back. White silk French lace in large rose patterns, made over a white moire skirt, is a fashionable combination. The deep scalloped lace is draped as an apron covering the front and sides, while the back has a lace breadth in pleats down the middle, with a moire breadth each side of these pleats turned over at the top in handkerchief points. A bridle of moire ribbon is down the left side of the lace front, and a great chou or loose rosette is on the right side. The moire basque is draped with lace, and has a high collar of moire ribbon, with a bow on the left side. The full lace sleeves have a deep moire cuff.

Moire antique is being used for brides' dresses for June weddings. This is the old-fashioned moire with large rippled designs, instead of the French watered silks in stripes now so generally worn. The new fancy is to trim wedding dresses with gold or silver net, lace, or beads arranged amid flounces of white lace. On the waist are rows of narrow fringe of loops of fine gold or silver beads, alternating with similar fringe of pearl or crystal beads, or of the pearl beads that have gold lining. Similar fringes that are deeper head the lace flounces on the skirt. Fine net or gauze of gilt or silver is shirred as a guimpe and sleeve puffs on the corsage of other dresses. Pointed passementerie of silver beads forms a heading for white lace or for deep silver fringe which falls amid lace flounces.

White nuns' veiling is combined with plain white net for dresses to be worn by ladies in light mourning. The basque of the veiling has a vest and under-cuffs for the sleeves made of Brussels net gathered across in puffs separated by tucks drawn full on narrow white ribbon that is run in them. The front of the skirt is made of the net in lengthwise puffs separated by panels of the tucks drawn on ribbons. The back has long veiling drapery and a moire sash. White trellis or netting like that heading fringes is used as a vest and on sleeves of other white wool and China silk dresses, with deep-netted fringe on the draperies. Sometimes a white gross grain vest striped with narrow jet, galloon, or with many rows of braid, is put in white wool dresses; there are also vests of striped black and white silk made with the stripes meeting in the middle to form V's. For all white veiling dresses gros grain or watered ribbon with picot edges may form the entire trimming, in lengthwise rows in cuirass shape on the basque, and as bands down the front and sides of the skirt between pleats or tucked clusters. Black ribbons are also used in the same way, and as bretelles, or outlining a vest. A pretty way to put two-inch feather-edged moire ribbon on a plain basque is to place it in a short V behind, beginning in the middle seam four or five inches below the collar, and coming thence down the fronts to the waist line, folding it narrower to taper it sufficiently, then crossing the right to meet the ribbon on the left side, and adding some loops and hanging ends. Instead of straps across there are two "butterflies" made of three notched ends of the ribbon placed in the space next the buttons between the throat and waist line. A ribbon is passed around the high collar and has butterfly ends on the left side, and the sleeves have also a ribbon band there notched ends on the inside seam instead of a cuff. A long bridle may be added down the left side of the skirt of such a dress, with perhaps a ladder of bows on the right side.

Gypsy bonnets with short round ears and the top of the brim rolled back toward the crown are worn by fashionable young women. The light Tuscany straws, fancifully braided, are most used for gypsy bonnets, and the trimmings are striped ribbons of gauze or of gros grain in long flat loops on top and for strings. A small posy or short ostrich tips, or a small curved cluster of cocks' plumes, may be thrust in the loops. Tulle and Brussels net are used for colored bonnets, and also for the white bonnets that complete dressy summer toilettes to be worn at June weddings, or for fetes champetres at Newport and Saratoga. Instead of a high cluster of flowers on top, the newest trimmings for these bonnets is two wreaths of tiny flowers—forget-me-nots, heliotrope, clematis, or rose-buds and leaves—laid along the edge of the entire brim and all around the crown. The Bo-Peep bonnet, or small pointed poke, is also made up of colored tulle, and is finished inside the front point with a ruche of tulle or of feather-edged ribbon, or a small bunch of flowers. Strings are omitted from these midsummer bonnets.

The Leghorn flats promise to be as fashionable for ladies as they are for children. Their wide brim is neither lined nor wired, and may be turned up in any capricious way that is most becoming to the wearer; sometimes it is turned down in front and straight up behind. In other hats it is down on both sides, with the front curved outward, and trimmed inside with loops or bows of ribbons, or a small wreath of crushed roses without leaves. White, yellow and lavender ribbons are most used on flats, and there are bunches of lilacs or wistaria amid white ribbons, apple blossoms with pale green ribbons, pink roses with yellow, and white cherry blossoms with lavender.

Point d'esprit net finely dotted is used in all colors for large pokes called garden hats, and worn all summer by young ladies in the country. Those of brown point d'esprit have a branch of pink roses and foliage extending straight back through the middle from the brim to the end of the crown; white net pokes have yellow jonquils; dark blue net is trimmed with white or pink roses; and black pokes have any color that will make them becoming, or else are all black.

The English turban, of dark smooth straw with low front trimming, is the fashionable choice of round hats for young ladies to wear in city streets or driving in the park. A large rosette of white lace or of ribbon with a gilt or shell pin thrust through it, and a band and facing of velvet, are its trimmings. When used for travelling, the lace is omitted, and there are rosettes of braid or loops of velvet ribbon. Sailor hats are again in great favor, and are made with very narrow brims all around, or at least quite narrow behind and wider elsewhere. To veil them with net is one of the fancies of the season, putting white or colored net in slight fulness all over the crown and brim.

A Nice Point of Etiquette.

From Tid-Bits.

A. A. C. (Chicago, Ill.) writes: "Is it in accordance with the rules of etiquette to bow to a man whom you owe $73, and who has repeatedly asked for the sum in a pressing, not to say offensive manner. Certainly not; custom demands that you pass him with a cold, glassy stare.

RICH GIFTS TO THE POPE.

Description of the Presents to the Ruler of the Vatican from Many Countries.

The gifts to Leo XIII. sent, or about to be sent, on the occasion of his jubilee, are of great interest and come from every country. The ring already sent from the Sultan of Turkey is estimated at $50,000, says a Rome correspondent of the Boston Pilot. The Empress of China has announced her intention of sending a jewel of great value. Victoria of England will send a copy of the Latin vulgate, richly bound. The diocese of Lyons will send a chasuble embroidered in gold and silk on white ground, with the arms of the City of Lyons and those of the Pope accompanied by the apocalyptic words: "Ecce vicot Deo de tribu Suda." The diocese of Dijon sends a marble statue of St. Bernard, and the diocese of Puy one of Notre Dame de France, with a lace alb of special richness.

Soissons, celebrated for the manufacture of mirrors, will send a specimen of its workmanship, Rouen an alb of Alencon lace, and Beauvais a choice piece of tapestry. Rheims will offer a splendid carpet wrought by society ladies; Tours, Nimes, Bordeaux, Amiens, Cambrai, Besancon, etc., will all send specimens of their special productions. Tarbes will offer an artistic reproduction in little of the grotto of Lourdes, and the Bibliographic society of Paris a masterpiece of French printing. The religious of the Abbey of Notre Dame de Lerins have undertaken the production in one volume of the "Magnificat" in 150 languages, each page being framed in colors and having splendid illustrations. Colonel Charette has called upon the pontifical zouaves in all countries to be represented in the vatican on this occasion. The city of Paris has decided to give, as its principal offering, a magnificent tiara formed of gold and silver adorned with sapphires and other precious stones, all in the most artistic manner wrought from designs and under the direction of Froment Meurice.

Naples proposes to present His Holiness with a golden throne. The 2,750 parishes of Belgium will each offer a special gift, independently of the gifts sent by dioceses, schools, circles, colleges, etc. The German Catholics will send a collection of all the scientific and literary works published in the German language during the pontificate of Leo XIII. It is calculated that this collection will consist of 20,000 elegantly bound volumes, constituting a special library in itself, and accompanied by an elaborate catalogue. Among other works to be sent by Holland is an altar in various colored woods. Students in seminaries are contributing for the erection of a monument to St. Thomas Aquinas. Eight nations have asked that gifts to the Pope should be allowed to pass the Italian custom houses duty free. This has been granted.

The French embassy has brought to the Vatican the cases containing the objects of art sent by President Grevy. This gift consists of a splendid work of art in the national Sevres manufactory. The vase, which is called "the Vase of Nimes," is in white porcelain marbled, with a beautiful grain, with ornaments in red flowers of extremely delicate tints. The whole rests upon a base of gilded bronze. Besides this, there is an inkstand very artistically wrought in sea-blue Sevres, with gold ornaments most tastefully designed, and surmounted by a figure of Minerva.

Napoleon.

From Scribner's Magazine.

In Bonaparte the Liberal party, the party opposed to the restoration of the Bourbons, saw precisely the man they wanted. His fame as a soldier, his great reputation for ability of every kind, commended him to public attention. He was unmistakably in favor of preserving the good worked by the late revolution. Nor had he been a month in office as first consul before the whole nation rejoiced to find that there was now no further doubt as to the preservation of the rights and liberties and equalities, so recently acquired, and at such an expense; while at the same time the industries of the country sprang into a healthy activity, as they recognized the firm grasp of an able man of affairs on the helm of the ship of state.

The well known full length portrait, by Isabey, of the first consul walking in the grounds of the Palace of Malmaison, shows us Napoleon at this stage of his career. He is in uniform, to be sure, but the countenance gives no sign of being stirred by the anxieties or the elations of of war. On the contrary, we have here Napoleon in civil life, calm, serious, intelligent, devoting his time wholly to the great tasks of the public service.

Power of the Purse For Peace.

Gath in the Enquirer.

There lies behind all this one power not often considered by our newspapers—that is, the power of the purse. The great bankers of France and Germany and of England as well do not want any war since they have money loaned in every direction and are drawing their interest with more or less punctuality. The English, with their commerce in every direction, are especially troubled by apprehensions of war. Indeed, such is the state of Europe that war can hardly break out between Germany and France without everybody pitching in pell mell to save in advance what might otherwise be lost. The trouble is that there is such a nation as France with a vast volatile voting population that can express itself in the election of members of the Parliament, and through these members can prevent their own Government from adopting any conservative plan to keep the peace. The present is especially the opportunity for little men who are not known to the outer world. Although Boulanger has a huge motley following in France, he does not appear to have confidence enough there to warrant the President of the country in calling him into a cabinet. To a professional soldier the mere chances of being killed or shut up in a fortress are not very deterring. Boulanger might have one chance in ten to come out and be another Napoleon.

Flowers for the Cemetery.

At the end of May or early in June, in this region, the Chinese peonies come into bloom, and these are excellent plants for the cemetery. One can select varieties to suit the fancy, but none are more appropriate than the double white and the fragrant pink varieties. Following next in blooming season rre the roses, and here is a wide scope for choice among the hardy kinds. A good white variety is always inquired for for this purpose, and there is none better than Madame Plantier. Among the moss roses, one of the best is Countess of Murinais; Louis Von Houtte and Prince Camille de Rohan are two of the best dark-colored perpetuals. Later in the season come the lilies, and the common white lily is so thrifty and good that we should give it the first place, and, in fact, it is the only one advisable to be generally employed for the cemetery. The white day lily and yucca filamentosa will follow later in time of blooming, and to continue to the close of the season, the hardy hydrangea, H. paniculata grandiflora, and the Japan anemone will give bloom until frost cuts them off.

For summer bedding, selections should be made with reference, to some extent, to the care that can be bestowed, and, with this in view, there can be a range through the list of the best bedding plants.

KANSAS NOTES.

Wichita is to have a $30,000 Episcopal church.

The Cowley county teachers' institute opens June 13.

Topeka's dog tax has brought $1,700 into the city treasury.

Only eleven Republican presidential postmasters remain in the state.

Yesterday the Methodists of Marion dedicated a new $7,000 church edifice.

Atchison has two divorce suits as results of the Salvation army's campaign, says the Globe.

Parsons has imported a professional dog catcher and proposes to get rid of her unlicensed dogs.

Governor Martin has received from Governor Taylor of Tennessee, an invitation to come down and see Nashville's boom.

A packing-house proposition is being considered by Eldorado. The Republican's boom article seems to have been effective.

Judging from present indications the celebration of the Fourth of July in Kansas will be as general as was the observance of Decoration Day.

The Hutchinson News claims to have captured the pennant from the Wichita Eagle, and now publishes more telegraphic news daily than any other paper in Kansas.

The attendance at the Lindsborg college next year promises to reach 500. Over 350 names are now enrolled on the school's register. It is a prosperous institution.

An exchange says: "Salina is hotter than a wolf because they gave the Missouri Pacific $40,000 for a depot, and the company is putting up about a $7,000 building.

Kansas is represented in the international Sunday school convention now being held at Chicago by about forty delegates. Several of them are taking prominent parts.

The Dunkards are travelling all over the State looking for good locations. It is probable that an addition of hundreds of goods citizens to Kansas will be the result of the national meeting at Ottawa.

Scott City has and enforces an ordinance compelling every business man in town to keep a couple of barrels of water sealed and standing in front of his place of business for use in case of fire. One or two fires have already been checked in this manner since the ordinance has been passed.

The Hutchinson News says: The volume of water going down the Arkansas river is greater at present than ever before in the history of Hutchinson. The channel is full even with the banks and low lands above and below the city are overflowed, but the high banks through the city prevents any danger here.

POLITICAL.

Mrs. Blaine is said to be opposed to a second Presidential race by her husband.

Maryland prohibitionists will conduct a State campaign on the camp-meeting plan.

Senators Beck and Blackburn, with Congressmen Breckenridge and McCreary, are booked to address an old-fashioned Kentucky barbecue June 15.

"Mr. Randall makes the mistake of thinking that the development of the iron industry in the South is causing a revolution in Southern sentiment on the tariff question," says the Savannah (Ga.) News (Dem). "There is no doubt that the South is as solidly in favor of a radical reform in the tariff now as she ever was. There may be a noticeable protection sentiment in the sugar-producing section of Louisiana, and in Alabama and Tennessee towns where iron is manufactured, but, taken as a whole, the South is now, as she has been for years, in favor of a tariff for revenue, and not for protection."

WHAT TO READ.

The Latest Craze of the Best Hundred Books Noted.

From the Cornhill Magazine.

Some distinguished men have recently been amusing themselves with the insoluble problem, Which are the best hundred books? I say insoluble, because to my mind, the best book for any man is that in which he takes the most interest, and as men's powers and tastes vary indefinitely, and there is no power and no taste which may not be stimulated by reading, so the suitability of books depends upon the idiosyncrasy of the reader. One man prefers metaphysics and another poetry; one is a devourer of novels, another of biography, and a third of travels, and a fourth of history, and a fifth of antiquarian reseach, and a sixth of theological controversy, and a seventh of politics; one likes the classics and another oriental or modern English literature; one is an enthusiast for Scott and another for Coleridge, and a third for Alexander Dumas, and so forth. Which is the best? That depends on the man; but all are good, and whichever rouses his mind most, and commands his sympathies most powerfully, is, in all probability, the best for him. Literature represents all the reasonings and feelings and passions of civilized men in all ages. As Coleridge says:

All thoughts, all passions, all desires,
Whatever stirs this mortal frame,
All are but ministers of love,
And feed his sacred flame.

We may apply the words to genius. To select any particular variety as best for all is as absurd as to say that every man ought to be a priest or that every man ought to be a soldier. But this I may say: Take hold anywhere, read what you really like, and not what some one tells you that you ought to like; let your reading be part of your lives. It may have a bearing upon your true interests and the function which you are to discharge in the world; or it may be a relief to the occupations in which you are immersed. Even if it be a mere recreation, let it be such a recreation as may be subservient to your highest development—a rule which is, of course, applicable to every employment from preaching to playing foot-ball. But, in any case, remember that reading worthy of the name is not the acquisition of a set of dates and facts, or a knowledge of the correct critical labels, but an occupation which to be pursued to any purpose must be pursued with zeal—must become, if it should not begin by being a real and keen enjoyment and which should end by becoming not a mere luxury but a necessity of life. If there should be some people who find, after all, that reading anything is a bore, I shall simply point out to them that there are many occupations beside reading and some of them quite as useful. You may study science and art, or be active philanthropists, though you never read anything more nearly approaching literature than Euclid or the reports of the association for the benefit of distressed washerwomen. Literature should be content with its genuine worshippers and not stoop to enlist the services of mere hypocrites. But I am equally certain that most of us can find something to read, something the reading of which can become a ruling passion, something, too, which will increase our intellects, give keenness to our perceptions and strength to our sympathies, something which will make us better specimens of the human race and more fitted to discharge any of the duties which lie before. And if fully to qualify ourselves requires a struggle, it is a struggle which will bring an ample reward.

Pigmies of Africa.

Herodotus speaks of pigmies as a race of little men and women living in Africa, says a writer in the Youth's Companion. Since that day travelers have brought back from that continent reports of such people being seen or heard of in the interior. Of late it has been the fashion to discredit Herodotus, and all writers who repeat or corroborate his stories. As it happens, however, a German explorer, Dr. Wolff, proves that the early writers were correctly informed.

He has found in the country along the south branch of the Congo whole villages of tiny men and women of a height not more than 4 feet and 7 inches. They are known as Batua. Their villages, consisting of huts, are met with in clearings in the forests, which cover the greater part of the country.

Among their neighbors the Batua are regarded as little benevolent beings, whose mission it is to provide the tribes among whom they live with game and palm wine. In exchange maize and bananas are given to the pigmies. These happy relations between the little people and their neighbors will remind the reader of the way in which the fairies and brownies used to be looked upon by our ancestors.

The Batua excel in the art of climbing palm trees to collect the sap, and in setting traps for game. Their agility is almost incredible. In hunting they bound through the long grass like grasshoppers, and face the elephant, antelope and buffalo with the greatest boldness, shooting their arrows with rare precision, and following up quickly with a stroke of the lance.

The Quaker Senator.

Gath in the Enquirer.

"How about Rhode Island and Connecticut?"

"Rhode Island has one peculiar Senator, a Quaker, who has not been very long in the body. He very properly represents Rhode Island, which was founded by Quakers, Baptists and others driven out of Massachusetts. There is a large Quaker settlement in that State, and they have at last a man very much of the type of John G. Whittier, the Quaker poet. He wears a shad-belly coat, with the usual Quaker cut, and such a Senator has probably not been seen since the earliest administrations; but John Dickinson and a few others were elected to the Senate by States like New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Platt, of Connecticut, is regarded as a solid man—not very showy, but one of the Senators whose opinion is to be taken into consideration by his fellow-Senators. Hawley is a very fine speech-maker, a man of showy parts, but he is not regarded as one of the old sachems and counselors of the Senate."

Tricket and Beach are matched for an oaring contest for the championship of the world.

Omaha defeated Leavenworth yesterday at Omaha by a score of 16 to 10; Denver, Topeka, at Denver, 11 to 6.

A Kansas City man has been endeavoring for some time to arrange a fight between his 33-pound dog and any other canine, but so far has not succeeded.

Tenebreuse, a bay filly owned by M. P. Aumonts, won the race for the grand prize run at Chantille yesterday, Merry Hampton, the winner of the London Derby, came in fourth.

Jack Kilrain was formally presented with the Richard Fox diamond studded belt at Baltimore, Md., Saturday night, denoting the heavy weight championship of America. It is one thing to be presented with a belt, another thing to whip Sullivan.

The postoffice nines of Kansas City and St Joseph met at League Park yesterday, and the latter was defeated, scoring in 8 runs to Kansas City's 14. There were about 600 spectators who remained to the end of the game on account of the amusement furnished by the awkwardness and ignorance of the game displayed. The features of the game were a brass band from St. Joseph and the fit of one of the St. Joseph players.

The first game of base ball ever played here between nines composed of the members and attaches of real estate firms, was played Saturday afternoon, on Troost plateau, between nines from Charles Matt & Co's. and W. J. Cox & Co's., resulting at the end of five innings in a score of 8 to 7 in favor of Matt & Co. Some very good plays were made for amateurs. The hard hitters were Cox, Wakefield and Smythe. The best twirlers were Trembly and Childs. Samuel and Cox as captains, commanded superbly. Jones and Hubbard made home runs—after the banquet. W. J. Barringer as umpire was fair, firm and accurate. The following was the position of the nines:

Matt & Co.	Position	Cox & Co.
J. A. Trembly	Catcher	G. W. Robinson
C. A. Childs	Pitcher	J. F. Smith
Harry Wakefield	First base	D. Avery
E. G. Jones	Right field	B. D. Hubbard
H. S. Samuel	Second base	B. F. Lark
R. T. Waller	Third base	V. E. Rhodes
A. F. Waller	Center field	W. J. Cox
Wm. Morse	Left field	V. F. Smythe
J. Larkin	Short stop	R. Stewart

After the game the entire party repaired to Chapin & Gore's restaurant upon the invitation of Cox & Co., where a banquet was served. Toasts were offered and responses were made by Messrs. W. J. White, of Jamestown, N. Y., W. J. Cox, O. B. Steen, W. F. Barringer and others. In the evening a box party was given at the Ninth street theatre by Matt & Co. to both nines and invited friends. A challenge has been issued by Cox & Co., and accepted by Matt & Co. to play another game next week, in League Park. Now that the real estate men have taken the national game in charge it may be expected to experience a decided boom.

DRAMATIC DRIFT.

W. W. Cole, the circus manager, and wife, have sailed for Europe.

Four theaters of San Francisco, it is said, would like to find tenants.

Edwin Booth has become so gray that he wears a wig in Hamlet now.

Rowland Reed will play Doctor Quack, by Fred Marsden, next season.

The crusade against the theater hat must be taking a rest. It is heard no more.

"The Jerseyman," the late Barney McAuley's play, has been purchased by J. B. Polk.

Anna Boyd, the soubrette, has obtained a divorce from her husband, Harry Morris, the German comedian.

Sol Smith Russell, who recently bade farewell to the footlights, intends to become a plumber and rake in shekels.

Lotta's cottage at Lake Mohopac is said to be the most notable and elegant of any of the summer homes of theatrical people.

John Cobbe has purchased Willing's sensational drama, "The Dark Secret" for America. The play is at present being produced in Copenhagen and Paris.

In the Musical Standard Mr. Stephen S. Stratton, of Birmingham, printed an interesting list of about 250 musicians of all nationalities who died last year. The average of age is a high one, nearly 61 years. There were four suicides, all vocalists. One lady was murdered and another "hissed to death."

Two things which a base ball player needs—a bat and a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil.

WOMEN AND THEIR CLOTHES.

An Inquiry as to Why Silks, Velvets, Etc., So Improve Female Beauty.

From the St. Louis Republican.

After lovely woman has acquired her rights and has developed to a full masculine standard the commissures and the processes of her brain, some female Virgil will doubtless begin her epic of the emancipation with "clothes and the woman I sing." Certainly with the sweeter sex clothes are the weapons, the resources of civilization, with which feminity marches to the conquest of the world. It is all very well to point to the Venuses and the other ancient ladies who came down to us in our marble, just as the cigaret pictures of our era will go down to posterity images and evidences of bad taste. They prove nothing. The nude is inherently vulgar and immodest, and the divinest flights of art cannot change the deliberate verdict of the world against it. But the woman clothed is a creature suited to our century, to our convictions, and to our climate, and it is to consider just why silks and velvets and cheese cloths should so accentuate and better female beauty that this inquiry has been made.

Nobody can write scientifically of woman's apparel but a woman. The man who attempts it is lost. He is at once bewildered by a maze of technical terms, bustles and paniers and corsages a la reine, and all the other expressions which go to describe exactly just what is meant. But a man may endeavor to take a broad mental grasp of the subject apart from and above the petty fineness with which feminine scribblers would confuse counsel. Thus the man accepts the woman as a whole, and considers her and what she has on as one harmonious, homogeneous, unanalyzable completeness.

It is by her dress, rather than by a single hair, that beauty leads us. She enshrines herself in a walking tabernacle whereat we do our worshipping. Yet no one can explain the glamour. A nicely-dressed girl who has been to the high school and perfected herself in the calculus of probabilities has figured out for the Republican that upon gala occasions a woman's external charms consists as follows:

	Per Cent.		Per Cent.
Linen	20	Ribbons	4
Flannel	10	Millinery	6
Hosiery	6	Parasol	4
Leather	5	Gloves	2
Corsets	8
Silk	35	Total	100

Now, if we add to this the proper compound of carbons, nitrogens, phosphates, and all the other elements which go to make up women, we will be able to see exactly what conjunction of matter it is that flutters the masculine pulse and stirs the young man's fancy in the spring when Miss Goldilocks waltzes with Prince Charming to Strauss' music.

There is a subtle something which one can not get on the microscope slide, which refuses to be reduced to percentages, which baffles description, and yet which is one of the most important facts to be considered in any theses of this sort, and that is the manner in which the subject wears her clothes. Two girls with faces of equal value and garments of equal texture will fail to produce equivalent effects, because one has this indefinite quality and the other has not. Consequently there are girls in calico who go off as soon as they appear on the matrimonial market, while there are girls in Samite and Tyrian purple who wait and wait and find hope wane to wanhope, as they tell themselves:

There never was a goose so gray
But some day, soon or late,
An honest gandor came that way
And claimed her for his mate.

Hence we come to the practical part of our theme. If clothing is so necessary to women—if we appraise femininity, as we do, by its cover—should not philanthropists take up the matter, and, instead of the wasted and misguided efforts to make girls savants in science, make them savants in loveliness? Should not our theory of education be overhauled and repaired? We teach boys at public expense how to make a living, and certainly, if we propose to be logical, we should teach the girls to fill their end in life. Their should be a grammar school of calicoes, reaching up to a high school course of merino, and nun's veiling, and cheese cloth, and topped off with a university training in silks and satins and laces, with a post-graduate course on speculative dressing, all, of course, out of the public school fund, and as part of a scientific school system.

Under such an ordering of affairs, each girl would have a fair show in the world, and the dear creatures would be too happy and contented to think of meddling with politics or the tobacco habit. Unless something of the sort is done, there is no telling what may not happen.

MORMON MYSTERIES.

The Temple of the Lord and Its Celestial Origin.

The mystery about the Endowment House and the secrecy with which ceremonies there performed are guarded, writes a New York Times correspondent from Salt Lake City, have a practical end aside from that of impressing the ignorant Mormons with its dread solemnity, that is, the concealment of plural marriages, and such evidence of them as might be used in prosecutions for bigamy and unlawful co-habitation. The old Scotch guide rather neatly turned the position of a persistent visitor on whose watchguard he observed Masonic insignia by telling him that he might as well expect to penetrate the forbidden precincts of a Masonic lodge without knowing the "grips and signs" as to enter the "Endowment Hoos" without a knowledge of its "manual," for it has its "grips and signs" also.

"Who is the architect of this building?" was asked of the Scotch guide respecting the Temple. He looked at his questioner for a moment gravely, as if to prepare him for the full significance of the answer. "No architeck on airth could design that building. There are things in it that it has never entered into the mind of any man on airth to know. There is nothing in the mind of any architeck or any man on airth that would enable him to design it. This building is representative of things in heaven which are known to no man on airth. It was seen in vision by Brigham Young in its finished state, and the spot where it should be built, and when he came into the valley he pointed out this spot and said: 'This is the place for the temple of the Lord to be built.' You see those round things (pointing to two circular shields at the base of two pilasters that extend to the top of the central tower); they represent the world, and those bunches at the top, like bunches of grapes, and the lines running down from them, represent the clouds and the rays of truth descending from them, and there are the sun moon and stars that have representations that no man on earth could tell." Of course, he said, there was a working plan, but it was made according to Brigham Young's vision. The style of the edifice would not lead one to ascribe it to a celestial origin. It has a rather imposing effect in its present unfinished state. If completed according to the visionary design, with extinguishers on the towers, it will be decidedly commonplace in appearance. The walls, about four feet thick, are massive as those of a fortress, and are composed of granite blocks the whole thickness, without the small stone work frequently used in the inner face of walls. The front and rear consists of three towers each, and the sides are heavy curtains connecting the towers. In the sides are two rows of rather small windows, alternating with two rows of elliptical openings half as high as the windows. It promises to be a very gloomy building inside. The corner stone was laid in 1853, and one of the most mysterious things about it is where the $3,000,000 went which are said to have been expended on it already. Can it be that the $800,000 charged up by President Young as "services," when required to explain a deficit, was for the celestial design furnished by him? The Mormons could have obtained a better one for less money.

The Size of Dakota.

Dakota is large enough for four states, and in less than twenty years will have a population equal to nearly a million for each of the four. But just now it is only seeking to be made into two. It is about as large as the whole of New England and the two great states of New York and Pennsylvania added. It has 600,000 people. It has a soil of extraordinary fertility, with comparatively little waste land. It has a severe climate part of the year, but on the whole a healthful climate. It has almost 4,000 public schools.

Business and Booming.

From the Ottawa (Kas.) Local News.

Ottawa is a whole team and a cross dog under the wagon when you come to business and the building boom.

MISSOURI NOTES.

A Sedalia man died recently leaving a wife and twelve children living.

St. Joe Englishmen propose to observe the Queen's birthday in a public manner.

The Saline county fair at Marshall, Mo., is the first in the State, beginning as it does on August 3rd.

Since Major Cole commenced his labors in Hannibal more than four hundred sinners have been converted in the town. He is trying to eclipse his Sedalia record.

The directors of the First National bank of Milan, which was robbed by its cashier, Mr. Hatfield, state that the loss will not even temperarily affect the business of the institution.

This is the way the Sarcoxie Vindicator puts the case: This county paid $11,044.07 criminal costs last fiscal year. We get $15,000 from the whisky traffic, consequently for all the souls sent to hell, and families impoverished our net gain is $3,955.93.

LABOR ITEMS

The lumber trade is very active and prices are firm in western, eastern and southern markets.

Labor has been advanced in many branches since the first of May, and employers are complaining that all of the improvement in prices has been secured by labor.

The dry goods manufacturers, under which should be included the manufacturers of all kinds of textile fabrics, have not as yet found it necessary to restrict production, or to engage in a struggle for trade. Competition keeps prices low, and retailers and jobbers are not anxious to buy far ahead as when capacity was not as anxious to cope with the country's requirments.

Baltimore bas ball club recommends St. Jacobs Oil. Can't do without it.

KEEP OUT OF THE PAST.

Keep out of the past! for its highways
Are damp with malarial gloom,
Its gardens are sere, and its forests are drear,
And everywhere molders a tomb.
Who seeks to regain its lost pleasures
Finds only a rose turned to dust,
And its storehouse of wonderful treasures
Is covered and coated with dust.

Keep out of the past, it is haunted,
He who in its avenues gropes
Shall find there the ghost of a joy prized the most,
And a skeleton throng of dead hopes.
In place of its beautiful rivers
Lie pools that are stagnant with slime,
And those graves gleaming bright in the phosphorus light
Cover dreams that were slain in their prime.

Keep out of the past! it is lonely
And barren and bleak to the view,
Its fires have grown cold and its stories are old,
Turn, turn to the present, the new!
To-day leads you up to the hill tops,
That are kissed by the radiant sun,
To-day shows no tomb—all life's hopes in bloom—
And to-day holds a prize to be won.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

STARBEAMS.

Bob Burdette is a deacon in the Baptist church. None of the other humorists incline to religion.

A prominent milliner has been presented at the drawing room of the Lord Chamberlain, whereat London society is greatly shocked.

"The sweet girl graduates" are abroad in the land, and what they and the senior class don't know ain't worth picking up anyhow.

Horace Mann still lives in the many things well said and nobly acted. He used to say: "It is well to think well; it is divine to act well."

There may be something in a name—picturesqueness at least. The new bishop of Melbourne, Australia, answers to the name of Field Flowers Goe.

Feminine handkerchiefs this season are not for perspiration. Perish the idea! Their texture is etherial and meant only for the dainty purposes of smoothing angel faces.

Puck is of the opinion that "self-possession is a good thing in any young woman, but that she should not keep it up too long." Puck is edited by a philosopher who is likewise a married man.

The Empress of Japan is coming to America. She is reputed to be a sensible, level headed woman. Her visit to this country is solely for the purpose of educating herself in the customs and progressive ideas of the republic.

Robert Louis Stevenson, the rising young author, has come into possession of a large amount of property. It is too early yet to say whether the acquisition is a blessing or a curse. Inherited property is not always a blessing.

In the east a fashionable woman thinks nothing of lifting her child over the brook by one arm, but if her husband should throw the poodle over the styles by the tail she would be ready to faint and ready to exclaim, "you cruel thing."

It is said that Mrs. Blaine objects to her husband making another race for the Presidency. The Madam is a woman of good judgment. Blaine himself favors the race. Gail Hamilton has not yet given her opinion in the matter.

Ralph Disraeli, a nephew of Lord Beaconsfield, is manifesting some talent for public ife and the Queen will, it is said, push him to the front, If the young man has backing and brains too there is no reason why he should not get along.

Japan is rapidly adopting the cremation system. During the month of March nearly seven hundred bodies were cremated at Tokio. In Italy also this method of dispensing of the dead is growing and in the United States it is making some progress.

"Jubilee Juggins" of England, is a fair stand off to our "Coal Oil Johnny." He recently inherited a vast fortune, about two and a half millions. He is getting through with it by dissipations and fool investments as rapidly as possible. He also bet at the Derby and was a heavy loser.

Women are qualified for suffrage, that is they seem to have one of the same qualifying attributes with which men are invested. The Rev. Miss Olympia Brown-Willis of Racine, Wis., is to be proceeded against for stuffing the ballot-box. The Rev. Miss Olympia ought not to do such manly things.

Jenny Lind has not been able to keep all her fortune, but she is highly honored in her own land. She and her husband are generous givers in every charity and that makes them favorites with the people. Only generous souls are really beloved. The miserly have no popularity and only interested friends.

Face washes are not all they are painted. A New York belle used liberally of a new variety for her complexion and now she has no complexion at all. Paint, like any of the other blessings should be used in moderation. It is a matter wherein too much delicacy can not be displayed, for it is something awful to despoil the human face.

How is this for cultured Boston? George Eliot's novels are the least read of any of the leading novel writers by the patrons of the Boston public library. The standard of novel reading in Boston does not seem to be any higher than in other cities. It is said now that in proportion to population there are more good readers west than east.

General Butler has been talking to a graduating law class in Boston. One of his characteristic remarks was this: "Make a bargain for your fees, and be sure to do this and to get your pay early." It is probable that this has been the rule of his life. His clients never got away any more than did his case. The advice, however, was gratuitous. No lawyer in good standing ever neglected to collect his fees.

The Virginia Senators.

Washington Letter to Philadelphia Press.

It is probably not generally known that the two Virginias—the old and West Virginia—will be represented in the Senate of the Fiftieth Congress by an aggregate of the youngest members of that body in respect to years ever recorded in any two adjoining states. John W. Daniel, who succeeds Mahone, is not yet 44 years old; his senior colleague, Harrison Riddleberger, is a year younger, while Camden's successor from West Virginia, Charles J. Faulkner, is but 40, and his senior colleague, Kenna, is just 39. The latter gentleman is a great favorite here, and is considered by his friends to be quite as much of a Washingtonian as a West Virginian. The Senator is nothing if not original. Captain Burritt is responsible for the story that he introduced a novel feature into the campaigning and canvassing business a few years that has added immensely to his already well established popularity. Ever since the right of suffrage was a prerogative of the American people, the violin, or, to speak more to the point, the fiddle, has been a very important factor in the hands of candidates at cross-roads meetings, huskings and barbecues. Senator Kenna is not only a good manipulator of the bow, but is also one of the cleverest of amateur photographers in the country, and he enters upon his field of labor twice armed. It is his custom, the captain says, to carry with him while on his political circuits his violin and his photographic apparatus. The latter has proven a wonderful influential adjunct. He will photograph an entire family of his backwoods constituency in group or detail and present the surprised and delighted aboriginals with the same, which to them is more novel and acceptable than a whole front row of seats in a circus. It is estimated that Kenna has, during the past three years, photographed two-thirds of the entire population of the rural and mountain district of the State, and has held thousands of discontented voters safe to the party on election day by the influence of his camera.

The Citadel of Chivalry.

From the Nashville Union.

A young lady said at a recent meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Savannah: "Chivalry, which has fled from all other quarters, has taken refuge in the newspaper offices." It is unnecessary to state that this young lady is the prettiest and brightest representative of her sex in Georgia.

Type Writing as She is Wrote.

From the Cleveland Leader.

Since I have been obliged to abandon the mighty and reliable pen for the subtle and eccentric typewriter, I, too, have begun to collect English. The typewriters aren't so much to blame for the collections of the girls, though, after all, nearly all young and maidens, often beautiful and shy and full of that assumption of innocence that beguiles the wisest of us, these typewriter girls are, nevertheless, as cunning and delusive as gallant men dare imagine lovely women to be. I sit by my lady of the machine and dictate such a sentence as this: "The spirit of commerce dominates the 'place,'" and she daintily interprets it, "the spirit of Thomas." She prints, "he jabbed the electric call boy," when I told her the "call bell." I assert in her pearly ear on another day that "fees will be abolished" in the happy time when landlords pay waiters as they should, and she makes it "thieves will be abolished." I take her immaculate, dainty copy of my work and read, "If you happen in be sure to go!" what I hoped she would have made me say being, "If you haven't been." I borrow from my ancestors the phrase "heavy bodies moved slowly." But she insists that I should be original, as I must or lose my income, and so she writes, "Everybody's move slowly." I speak of the stage, of Messrs. Shook and Gilmore, and of poor insane Bartley Campbell, and she makes me treat of "Shipping Gilmore and Bartley Campbell," and in the same article she makes the actors raise "a perfect pantominium," when I had only intended them to create a pandemonium.

TO-MORROW: Southerly winds; fair weather; stationary temperature.

1414 dozen Ladies' Collars, Cuffs and Chemisettes are a great many, but our avenues for distributing large quantities increase daily. Customers were waiting at the store doors when they were opened this morning, and a large number of extra hands are busily engaged in selling these Wonderful Bargains.

Just think of it! Six collars for 25c, or 6 collars for 30c; 3 pairs of cuffs for 25c; 3 Children's Collars for 25c; Chemisettes, 10c and 25c each, all worth nearly double. Come to-morrow without fail.

We have been advised of the shipment of some large purchases of Black Chantilly, Cream Oriental and Egyptian Laces from another of "The Great Trade Sales" in New York, very much below value. As soon as the goods arrive we will give further particulars.

It appears that the colorings of those fine Novelties for $9.98 are too dark for summer wear. Perhaps they are. None of us would take a sealskin cloak at one-fourth the value if we had to wear it all summer.

It's different with those Turkish Towels. They are "all-the-year-round" artcles, and are selling steadily. That they are real $3 a dozen values is shown from their size and weight. 15c each is very little to ask for them.

SCOTT CITY!

County Seat of Scott County, Kas., a Wonderful Western City

In a Beautiful, Fertile Country.

Here is the place to put your money to make immense margins—a chance to invest on a sure thing.

Scott City does not claim to have a boom, and don't want any. The word "boom" is now used to designate the state of affairs in a town where property is selling for more than it is worth. Scott City is located in the center of as fine an agricultural country as can be found anywhere in America, has no rival town in the county, and is on the Denver Air Line of the Santa Fe and Missouri Pacific railroads.

Without any "boom" or craze to inflate prices, the natural growth of the country will make investments in Scott City property pay an annual profit of 100 per cent for the next three years.

The leading Real Estate firms of Scott City are: Hackett, Garrett & Hankey, Johnston & Disosway, and the Scott City Real Estate Co. L. S. Royer and F. A. Parsons are also engaged in the Real Estate Business.
